How to create a Winning Nomination

Writing an entry doesn't have to be time-consuming or tough; it will, however, take commitment and preparation.

When starting to complete your entry for the HCSA Awards there are many key aspects that you should consider.

This information is designed to help create a potential winning nomination and has been produced by the judges specifically to aid you in the entry process.

1 Creating your submission

- Read through all our award categories and make sure you identify which categories are best suited to your entry.
- Take time to complete your submission; don't leave it to the last minute. Starting early allows you to revisit and amend your submission at your convenience without the stress of a fast-approaching deadline.
- Ensure that your submission is structured and covers: what you did, how you did it, resources used, what challenge it addressed, any obstacles and how these were overcome, any unique aspects that contributed to a successful outcome, what the overall achievement was along with any key benefits.
- Keep it simple. Don't make your submission confusing or difficult to understand.
- Mention any policy initiatives that are supported by your entry and provide supporting testimonials.
- Be consistent throughout your entry and avoid any conflicting claims.
- If you can, take the time to provide empirical evidence such as a balanced scorecard to support your entry. All information is treated in total confidence by our Judging Panel and it may help increase your scores.

2 Points to remember

- You don't have to be a large organisation to win.
- Tell us about what is most important to your entry and be specific. There is no need to describe everything your organisation or team does.
- Please ensure you answer the questions 'in your own words' – don't cut and paste marketing or promotional material into your entry.
- Irrelevant material will not be considered – so make sure you avoid submitting material that doesn't support your entry.
- Remember, every part of the entry is important – keep at it and don't lose steam part way through!

Finally: Make sure you choose the right categories

Having completed your entry, get someone else to read it and consider whether you are entering the correct category, or whether you should enter more than one category.

Occasionally we will contact an entrant to suggest they change the category they have entered, or enter the submission in a further category. However, with the volume of entries received, especially nearer to the closing date, this isn't always feasible.

If your nomination is in the wrong category on the day of Judging, there is nothing we can do to change it.
